

How a lateral shift changes modelled stuff, by pitch type (within ± 10 in, where the model has data)

(a) right-handed pitchers

(b) left-handed pitchers

Sweeping pitches respond; fastballs and sinkers are flat. The natural experiment measures about half the model's slope, so read magnitudes as upper bounds.